Severe Weather Season 2021: Make a Plan and Be Alert!

On April 7, 2020, after 11:00pm, while many were sleeping, an EF-1 tornado tore through the southeastern part of Lorain County and traveled on the ground for 11.5 miles into Medina County. This is a reminder for everyone to be prepared for the 2021 severe weather season of April through August. Note, however, that tornados and destructive weather can occur year-round if the conditions are right for storms to develop.

Kendal has a Safety Plan and Procedure that residents and staff must follow to avoid injury. When the National Weather Service issues a Tornado or Severe Thunderstorm Warning for Lorain County, all staff members and residents should immediately take precautions and seek safe shelter in the following areas:

- Heiser Community Center: Public restrooms, auditorium, and interior corridors away from windows.
- Apartment Building: Bathrooms (if no windows), laundry rooms, trash rooms, stairwells, and corridors away from windows. If time permits, second floor residents should go to the lower level of the building and take shelter in the above-mentioned areas – always away from windows.
- Stephens Care Center: Public restrooms, bathing rooms, interior corridors, and resident bathrooms away from windows.
- Cottages: Bathrooms and closets inside, away from windows.

Facility Services and Stephens Care Center have weather radios that issue watches, warnings, and advisory announcements. They will communicate with the rest of the community center. During the day, Facility Services will notify the Heiser Community Center of imminent severe weather and all-clear messages.

Oberlin City's and Kendal's storm warning sirens will sound only when Oberlin is in the direct path of an approaching tornado. Residents should not depend upon hearing this siren to take shelter, however. Everyone should be monitoring the weather advisories when severe weather is anticipated. Tornados can strike within minutes.

Everyone should have a batteryoperated weather radio tuned to the NOAA (National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration) channel during the severe weather season. When severe weather is predicted, monitor your weather radios, computers, and TV weather channels to stay updated on the latest storm advisories. Now is the time to check that you have fresh batteries for flashlights as well as replacements in case of power failures due to storms.

Use the Buddy system to ensure your neighbors are aware of severe weather threats and know where to go and what to do. Remember: Safety is everyone's responsibility here at Kendal at Oberlin.

Spring Fling! 2021 Saturday, May 1 7:15pm - KOTV

During the last week in April, be sure to peruse the teaser displays along the windows in Heiser Lounge and test your knowledge of places near and far with Joe Colucci's geographical quiz.

Then it will be time for the main event – a video on KOTV presenting a whirlwind of stories and music from places Kendal residents have visited!

We can't gather in the auditorium yet, but we can invite friends and neighbors to our homes (in groups up to six). Sit back and enjoy the show together while snacking on your small bags of complimentary goodies.

Be prepared for a Grand Tour!

Just as spring brings rebirth, Kendal is reawakening after a year of suspended animation due to COVID-19. Because of an effective vaccine, major restrictions are being lifted. We see more and more of what we consider a normal life returning (dining in Fox and Fell!), while continuing to respect the concerns of residents who still feel at risk.

This is possible because our whole community worked very hard to bring us through the unknowns of a devastating pandemic.

A huge thank you to the staff who changed their lives to keep us safe; to residents who followed protocols which greatly restricted our lives to keep us safe; and to our leaders who followed science as it evolved, shared information quickly and thoroughly, and worked super-human hours for over a year.

Kendalites are a thoughtful, generous community. Next month starts the first of four appeals KORA and KaO make for donations. These appeals may come as a surprise to new residents, as it did to Fred and me when we moved here in May 2017. We'd just given all this money to Kendal and now we were being asked for more? Then we realized that Kendal has a notipping policy and the May and November staff appeals are to express our deep appreciation for all that staff does for us. The September appeal is to raise funds for all of KORA's activities, and the October appeal is for Kendal's benevolent concerns, including the Resident Assistance Fund.

Sadly, we must say goodbye to Maggie Stark who was instrumental in bringing us all here and has been key to our community's success. We will miss her tremendously and wish her a very happy retirement.

Spring LifeLong Learning Classes at Kendal

These courses will be conducted via Zoom. You will be able to ask questions by using the Zoom chat function. Sign up to receive the invitation to join a class by contacting Rebecca Cardozo. There is no fee for the courses.

Interpreting Macbeth Through Performance; Tues., April 13, 20, 27;

10:30am–12:00pm. Phyllis Gorfain, Oberlin College Professor Emerita of English, will lead three classes examining how multiple stage and film adaptations reinterpret this Shakespeare tragedy. Guided by the instructor's opening observations, participants will discuss how they see directors and actors freshly interpreting significant incidents. The collaborative discussion will celebrate how unique performance choices provide deeper understandings of this powerful play. A film version of Macbeth performed at Shakespeare's Globe Theatre in 2013 will be shown Saturday, April 10, at 7:15pm on KOTV.

The first session, Defying Fate and Pursuing Ambition, will study performance choices to question the ways both Macbeths respond to the prophecies of the Weird Sisters.

The second, Machismo and the Tragic Fear of Femininity, will explore how performance choices underscore the tragedy of gender when narrow notions of "manhood" and a fear of femininity lead characters away from generation and toward death.

The third, Cancelling Conscience and Consequences, will trace the tragic arc of the Macbeths' attempts to cancel conscience and avert consequences. The course will then wind up examining how multiple productions promote or thwart a return to conscience in their differing conclusions.

Mosques, Churches, and Synagogues in Medieval Spain; Tues., May 4, 11, 18; 10:30am–12:00pm. Erik Inglis, Professor of Medieval Art History, Oberlin College, presents a three-lecture course on Iberia from the 12th to 14th centuries. During this period, the peninsula had vibrant Muslim, Jewish, and Christian communities, whose coexistence was marked by both strife and cooperation. Works of art and architecture were vehicles for, and documents of, this coexistence. Each lecture focuses on one faith, but also shows art's role in contact with the other two.

The first lecture, Precious Objects from Al-Andalus, focuses on Muslim courts, which put a premium on precious objects in ivory, metal, and silk.

The second, Race and Religion in Alfonso the Wise's Cantigas de Santa Maria (Songs of Holy Mary), looks at Alfonso the Wise, ruler of Castile and Léon from 1252 to 1284, who was an important patron of learning and books. This lecture introduces the Cantigas and focuses on the miracles that document contact among Christians, Jews, and Muslims.

The last lecture, Synagogues and Haggadot: Jewish Art in Castile and the Crown of Aragon, discusses two aspects of Jewish art from two distinct regions of 14th-century Spain: two synagogues from Castile, and some Aragonese haggadot manuscripts read during the celebration of Passover. All these works were created in regions governed by Christians but have different ornamental forms. The synagogues' ornament has clear ties to styles pioneered by Muslim artists and architects, while the figurative decoration of the manuscripts demonstrates contact with Christian models.

Community Conversations Making Creative Play a Part of Our Lives Mon., April 5 - 7:15pm Zoom and KOTV

Join Michele Root-Bernstein for a Zoom conversation as she considers the role of "serious leisure" in a meaningful life. How do we make creative play a part of our lives, and why?

An adjunct faculty member at Michigan State University, Michele's work in creativity studies feeds directly into her career as a haiku poet. She explores the importance of imaginative play for all ages in her 2014 book, Inventing Imaginary Worlds, From Childhood Play to Adult Creativity. Leisure activities that we pursue actively and consistently affirm our inner nature to ourselves and others. And of particular interest to retirees, creative activities exercise physical and mental skills, even as they promote review of our lives, our legacies, and our desires for personal transcendence.

The Story Behind Stories from Storage Thurs., April 22 - 7:15pm Zoom and KOTV

Heather Lemonedes Brown, Virginia N. and Randall J. Barbato Deputy Director and Chief Curator at the Cleveland Museum of Art, will tell us how Stories from Storage, the spring exhibition at the CMA, was organized in just nine months during a global pandemic. The exhibition comprises 20 stories and includes more than 300 works of art, all drawn from the museum's vaults.

Heather will briefly discuss all 20 stories and delve more deeply into her own story, Mise en Page, which reveals 16 Old Master drawings that combine numerous elements carefully arranged on a sheet of paper. Heather is the daughter of resident Joyce Lemonedes.

Community Conversations Exploring Amazonia's Diverse Ecosystems: Myth vs. Reality Mon., April 26 - 7:15pm Zoom and KOTV

Resident David Benzing, Robert S. Danforth Professor of Biology Emeritus of Oberlin College, is senior research scientist at the Marie Selby Botanical Gardens in Sarasota, FL, where he holds the Jessie Cox Chair for Tropical Botany.

Amazonia is not covered by unbroken rainforest but has a mosaic of diverse types of ecosystems that support more than one-third of our planet's named species of plants and animals. To study how these disparate ecosystems are organized and operate, scientists must accept total immersion, which means that they must figuratively endure extended periods of time in the belly of the beast. How David met this challenge to address important questions about tropical plants - particularly about flora known as epiphytes is the subject of his presentation.

Community Conversations Hot Issues in Employee and Other Civil Rights Mon., May 3 - 7:15pm Zoom and KOTV

For reminders and links to upcoming programs, please be sure that you are on Carol Harvey's email list.

As we look at possibilities for using Heiser Auditorium, the Program Committee will need to explore the many details associated with increased programming options. Stay tuned.

There are many tasks associated with soliciting and implementing Kendal's programs. How Do I Choose the Right L.E.D. Bulb?

A team of four Oberlin College Environmental Studies 101 students is working with Kendal's Environmental Concerns Committee to develop a presentation to help residents choose the right L.E.D. bulb/fixture for their specific needs.

Maxine Houck reads Mark Twain on Tuesday Teatime Tales: TWAIN (HUCK FINN, JIM, & a historian) TWAIN Tuesday, April 20 - 4:30pm - KOTV

John Malkovich once said, "Nothing you do particularly matters. But I'm not really sure that's a great excuse for doing it poorly."

Lily Tomlin once said, "No matter how cynical you become, it's never enough to keep up."

I think Mark Twain would have liked them both. That is why I'm reading two selections from Huckleberry Finn and one from Twain's Autobiography. Both are very, very funny once you are an adult. One is only compassionate and perceptive.

If you think of Mark Twain as writing children's lit because your junior high teacher had you read Huckleberry Finn and Tom Sanyer, think again and come listen.

Betty Weinstock's Book on Wildflowers Now Digitized

Wildflowers in and around Oberlin are in bloom, and a guide to these flowers, compiled by Betty Weinstock, will soon be available as a digital book online.

Betty made careful observations in Oberlin and surrounding areas from 1998 through 2001, photographed and wrote identifying descriptions of the flowers, and put them into a "self-published" book. A single hard copy of the book is available in the Kendal library, but now the Horticulture Committee has made a digital copy of Betty's book. The book and the link to access it will be announced at the April Horticulture meeting.

Be an OC Library Friend: Try It, You'll Like It!

Remember those good old days when you wandered into Oberlin College's Mary Church Terrell Library and borrowed most anything that circulated? Ditto the Conservatory, Art, and Science Libraries? Well, fear not: those days are returning. Until then, sit back and read Library Perspectives, the quarterly newsletter of the Friends of the Oberlin College Libraries.

Many Kendalites are already members and receive this informative publication about the latest doings at the libraries and among the lively Friends community via electronic delivery or snail mail.

Are you a newcomer? Pick up a paper copy of Library Perspectives on the Town and Gown ledge opposite the mailboxes in Heiser's front hallway, or contact Thelma Morris. She'll make sure you get a copy.

Look forward to some Oberlin College faculty book talks being scheduled for Friends' consumption on Zoom – coming soon. And watch for the informal library tours when the buildings open to the community. They'll be offered first to those who are Friends of the Oberlin College Libraries – and then to any interested Kendalites. Joan Long and Thelma Morris

She is a Distinguished Professor and Director of The Cooperstown Graduate Program/SUNY Oneonta, as well as a museum consultant and scholar.

The program will begin with an introduction to her research findings, followed by a conversation facilitated by Dr. Meredith Gadsby, Associate Professor of Africana Studies and Comparative American Studies at Oberlin College. Viewers will be able to submit questions.

Nest Box News

The breeding season is just beginning. We expect Eastern Bluebirds (many of them stayed in the Oberlin and Kendal area all winter) as well as American Tree Swallows and even House Wrens to nest in some of our boxes.

The Kendal trail of ten boxes is part of the Black River Audubon system of nest box trails. Last month, Penny and Fritz Brandeau, who live in Amherst and supervise and support all the local nest box monitors, installed ten brand new or refurbished nest boxes to replace the old and worn-out boxes here at Kendal.

Nest box monitors check each box once a week and document their observations. The species that has claimed the nest box can be determined by the nesting material chosen and the size and shape of the nest – even before the eggs are laid. When the chicks emerge, monitors check on their development and health in order to find parasites and predict fledge dates and document their observations. All the collected data becomes a part of Cornell University's breeding bird survey.

If you would like to share the excitement of monitoring nest boxes in support of Eastern Bluebirds and other native species, contact Nina Love.

Dementia Friendly Discussion Group Fri., April 23 - 10:00am - Zoom

Contact Carol Bojanowski to get the link. All are welcome!

Climate Query

Did you know that Ohio State researchers have found that a carbon tax is "less costly than other ways to cut CO2 emissions"? It also cuts them faster. When the revenues are returned to households, as in Canada, that covers all the increased fossil-fuel costs for low- and middle-income people. The policy creates jobs, saves lives, improves people's health, and grows the economy.

Dementia Friendly Discussion Group, Explained!

It all started in January 2018, when KORA invited Dr. Tracey Lind, former Dean of Trinity Cathedral in Cleveland, Ohio, to speak about her journey with frontotemporal dementia. Interested residents asked how to interact with people experiencing cognitive challenges, then formed groups to discuss books such as Dancing with Dementia by Christine Bryden and Dementia Beyond Disease by Dr. Allen Power. Residents also developed an educational program called Stop, Look, and Listen.

The Dementia Friendly Discussion Group (DFDG) was formed to continue the education of residents about dementia. The group hosts an informal discussion monthly and looks for ways to educate the community and to reduce the stigma of cognitive change. Discussions include a wide range of topics both general and personal. Examples include: What are normal vs. abnormal cognitive changes? and What are some do's and don'ts when talking with people with dementia? Everyone is welcome, whether you have a problem to solve, something to share, or are simply curious.

The group also writes a monthly tip in The Kendalight called STAY CON-NECTED. Starting this month, each tip will derive from Dr. Allen Power's book, Dementia Beyond Disease. The book explains there are six components of well-being for those living with dementia: identity, connectedness, security, autonomy, meaning, and growth. When carefully supported, these six aspects of well-being can combine to create joy. Carol Bojanowski

Speaking to Deafness

The pandemic has taught us all that it is difficult to understand what a speaker is saying even if we have normal hearing. For the hearing impaired, it is nearly impossible to understand the masked speaker and even worse when the speaker is six feet away.

Following the hints in last month's Kendalight, here are some clues that will make it easier to talk to the hearing impaired listener:

- Face the person and stand still while you're speaking.
- Speak more slowly.
- Speak clearly and use your normal speaking volume; no need to raise your voice.
- Use visual cues if it will help.

For the hearing impaired:

- Eliminate all background noises; turn off the radio or TV.
- Ask the speaker to repeat if you cannot hear.
- Remember, it's our responsibility to speak up and say "I can't hear you." ~Posie Dauphiné

IDENTITY: As a person's memory declines, it is important to support their sense of IDENTITY

STAY CONNECTED – respect and support the sense of IDENTITY

From The John Bartram Arboretum: Witch Hazel (Hamamelis virginiana), (H. vernalis), and (H. ovalis)

There are three witch hazel native to the United States. Writing in the November 2012 Ohio Magazine, Jill Sell said, "At its most fanciful, the common witch hazel...looks like Dr. Seuss sneaked into the woods with a yellow crayon and drew squiggly French fries all over the shrub. At its best, witch hazel looks as if it were adorned with the waving tentacles of beautiful Chihu- son door. Go up close to it and be surly art glass."

Linnaeus, father of botanical nomenclature, christened witch hazel back in 1753: witch from wych, the old English word for flexible, and hazel for having leaves very much like those of hazelnut trees. The leaves, about 4 in. long, have impressed veins which are medium to dark green.

The common witch hazel in Ohio (H. virginiana) flowers in the woods in the fall through much of the winter and is a solid yellow color. Another native (H. vernalis) is known as the Ozark witch hazel and found in Zones 4-8. It has a red flower and blooms now in the spring with its brown leaves still hanging on to its branches. You can find a fine specimen between the Education Center and SCC, very near the Patter-prised by the intricacy of the flowers, which can get hidden by those leaves.

We have three newly planted witch hazel. One is visible from the Heiser Lounge, planted next to the library. If you walk down the glass corridor past the Marketing office, you can see another one, to the right, just as you enter the apartments (see photo). The third has been placed at Hackberry Grove between cottages 100 and 108. These shrubs are very fragrant

H. ovalis was discovered in 2004 and is not readily available for cultivation.

Witch hazel like half-day shade and well-drained soil, acid to neutral. Most varieties reach 10-20 ft. high and wide. H. vernalis is shorter than H. virginiana. The plants can be pruned back, have no significant disease problems, and are quite adaptive to the environment. However, if too wet, witch hazel can get several fungal diseases which can mar its appearance.

Native Americans introduced colonists to the properties of witch hazel. Known as a true medicinal plant, it is an ingredient in nonprescription drugs approved by the Food and Drug Administration and in skin care products.

The witch hazel is an important addition to our Arboretum, especially since it provides nectar for pollinators when few other plants are blooming. Its capsule-shaped seeds ripen in the fall and are eaten by a number of birds, and it is a host plant for the larvae of the spring azure butterfly. ~ Anne Helm for the Arboretum Committee. Thanks to Rachel Duncan, Grounds Staff and Arborist at Kendal at Oberlin, for her counsel.

Kendal Buddy System Update, Spring 2021

This time last year, we were at the beginning of a world-wide pandemic. Kendal responded to the crisis with a "hard closure" to keep us all safe until vaccines became available. The Buddy System responded by double-checking to make sure that the contact information and all buddy matches on all buddy lists were current and correct.

Thankfully, this spring most of us have been vaccinated and we are looking forward to a phased reopening. However, there are still many types of emergencies that could happen, so please take a moment to recall the information that is on your area's buddy list about you.

Did your buddy change in the last year? Did your contact information change? Is your cell phone number on Facility Services' list of residents who would like to receive a text from Kendal if we were to have a local emergency? Would you like to get your cell phone on that list?

If you are not sure what information the Buddy System currently has for you, or if you wish to make some changes, please contact your area coordinator. Current coordinators are:

- Cottages 1-24: Eileen Payton
- Cottages 25-52: Sandy Siebenschuh
- Cottages 53-80 & 101-104: Nancy Cooper
- Cottages 81-100 & 105-120: Jill Wettersten
- Cottages 121-144: Kay Rider
- Apartments 145-168: Betty O'Connor & Marilyn Burns
- Cottages 188-199: Ruth Miller
- Cottages 200-211: Harol Pesuit
- Cottages 212-223: Marie Evans
- Apartments 245-268: Kathy Reichard Thanks all for your help with this.

The Buddy System really does keep us safer. ~Lynn Ayres, Buddy System Coordinator

Dining Matters

Meal Plan Planning MORSEL As the Covid restrictions 2 decrease and options for dining slowly increase, discussions about choices for meal plans continue. Our standard Kendal contract specifies receiving a meal a day, but during the pandemic we have had the choice to opt in or out for meals each week. We now have the opportunity to make reservations for dining in the Fox and Fell. In the foreseeable future, we will have a choice of meal plans. Details are still under discussion, but the following describes the basics of the "Choice Meal Plan."

Each calendar quarter, we will have the opportunity to choose the number of meals we want for those months: opting out, 10 meals, 20 meals, or the contracted meal a day with an added bonus of two additional meals. Based on our individual decisions, we will be allocated a specified number of "dining dollars" determined by the number of basic meals (soup/salad, entrée, side dishes, dessert, and beverage) we have selected. These "dining dollars" can be used for meals in the Fox and Fell or for a la carte items in Langston when it is opened. If we chose to opt out or to select the 10 or 20 meal plans, we will also receive actual dollars credited to our accounts to offset the cost of the food for those basic meals that we have elected to forgo. We will be able to check online to determine the number of "dining dollars" we have remaining throughout the month. If we exceed the number of "dining dollars" we have selected (reached a zero balance), we can purchase additional meals and items that can be charged to our accounts.

This is the basic "Choice Meal Plan." We are still working to determine the viability of providing flexibility within the plans. While the quarterly meal plan schedule is set, we still need to determine if we can reinstitute the old travel policy for those who select the deluxe meal plan (daily plus two), whether we can use the meal plan for guests (a concern for the future), if we can fiscally allow a limited number of "dining dollars" to be carried over to the next month for the deluxe meal plan, etc.

Once the "Choice Meal Plan" is available, Fox and Fell will have complete meals at pre-set prices with seafood, meat, and vegetarian entrées available as well as some always available entrées. There will always be a selection of entrées at the basic meal price and often a premium entrée at a slightly increased price.

The staffing issue is a factor that determines the extent and timing of services. While the dining staff continues to provide three meals a day for the residents of the Stephens Care Center and prepares and serves dinner in the Fox and Fell, they are also working on a plan for Langston to open with takeout meals, extended hours, and limited seating for dining. We hope to see the opening of the Langston later this month.
